EduCulture at Global Source bridges classrooms and communities around crucial areas of K-12 education connected with critical issues facing humanity and our planet. Our programs offer lived experiences for educators and students that inform and shape a more enlivened and authentic curriculum. Our initiatives cultivate educational and community leadership, train and support educators, design and develop student programs, facilitate internships, foster community engagement and education, and build enduring networks of support.

Sustainable Schools & Communities

EduCulture bridges local farms, classrooms, lunchrooms and the larger food community through edible education programs that foster scholarship, stewardship, citizenship and sustainability. EduCulture partners schools and farms, transforming working landscapes into landscapes of learning, and utilizing our community as curriculum. Our edible education programs are serving academic needs, while growing produce for school and community food streams.

EduCulture's Edible Education programs are enhancing school curricula, cultivating farm-school partnerships, nurturing school gardens, and enriching school lunches. We offer a menu of student-centered, teacher-centered and community based educational programs. In the process, we are contributing to the preservation of local sustainable agriculture, nurturing farm stewardship and food citizenship, inspiring young people to become co-producers in their food communities, and growing future generations of farmers.

Heritage & Human Rights Education

Our Only What We Can Carry Project is a ground breaking educational development project on Bainbridge Island, WA that fosters learning experiences for educators and students about exclusion, inclusion, citizenship and community. The aim of this unique program is to anchor and sustain a local legacy, lessons and learning in our schools and community surrounding the experience of exclusion and WWII, for these and future generations.
